Mindset

I have to stay at the office. Eu tenho que ficar no escritório.

I have to stay in the office. Eu tenho que ficar no escritório.

I have to work at the store until 7pm.

A diferença básica entre “in the” e “at the” nesses casos está relacionada à ênfase no local:

1. “In the” é usado quando você está dentro de um lugar ou espaço fechado, dando a ideia de estar fisicamente dentro desse local. Exemplo:

- “I have to stay in the house.” (Estou dentro da casa.)
- “I have to stay in the classroom.” (Dentro da sala de aula.)

2. “At the” é mais usado para se referir a um local de maneira geral, sem a necessidade de estar dentro do espaço físico. Foca mais no ponto ou localização. Exemplo:

- “I have to stay at the office.” (Estou no escritório, não importa se dentro ou próximo.)
- “I have to stay at the store.” (Estou na loja, não importa se dentro ou ao redor.)

Resumindo: “In the” foca mais no interior de um lugar, enquanto “at the” é mais sobre estar presente em um local específico.

I am / I'm - eu estou / sou

WORDS

at the office - no escritório

at the airport - no aeroporto

at the park - no parque

at the store - na loja

at the conference - na conferência

at the mall - no shopping at home - em casa

at work - no trabalho

Tanto “at work” quanto “at home” não levam “the” porque representam conceitos abstratos ou estados gerais, e não locais físicos específicos.

Por que não usamos “the”?

1. Home: Refere-se à ideia de “lar” como algo pessoal e universal, não apenas um lugar físico.
 - “I’m at home.” (Estou em casa — conceito geral de onde você mora).
2. Work: Refere-se ao estado ou situação de “estar trabalhando”, e não a um local físico.
 - “I’m at work.” (Estou no trabalho — foco na atividade, não no lugar).

Comparando com lugares físicos:

- Quando o lugar é físico e específico, usamos “the”. Por exemplo:
 - “I’m at the park.” (Estou no parque — lugar físico específico).
 - “I’m at the store.” (Estou na loja).

Resumo:

- “At home” e “at work” = Conceitos abstratos (sem “the”).
- “At the park”, “at the office” = Locais físicos específicos (com “the”).

Are you gonna work tomorrow? você vai trabalhar amanhã?

Are you gonna travel on Monday? você vai viajar na segunda?

Explicação geral

Gonna é uma forma contraída de “going to” usada em inglês informal, principalmente na fala. Ela substitui “going to” quando expressamos algo que vai acontecer no futuro ou uma intenção.

Como usar “gonna”:

1. “Gonna” = “Going to”

- Usado para falar sobre planos, intenções ou algo que certamente acontecerá.
- Não é usado em inglês formal (em redações, apresentações formais, etc.).

2. Estrutura: Sujeito + verbo “to be” + gonna + verbo base

Exemplos:

- I'm gonna study. (Eu vou estudar.)
- She's gonna travel next week. (Ela vai viajar na semana que vem.)
- We're gonna watch a movie. (Nós vamos assistir a um filme.)

Pontos importantes:

1. Sempre com o verbo “to be”:
 - É necessário usar o verbo “to be” antes de “gonna”.
 - Correto: I’m gonna eat.
 - Errado: I gonna eat.
2. Não usado com perguntas diretas sem inversão:
 - Para perguntas, mantenha o verbo “to be” na frente.
 - Exemplo: Are you gonna stay home? (Você vai ficar em casa?)
3. Não substitui “going” sozinho:
 - “Gonna” só substitui “going to” no futuro. Não pode ser usado como forma de ir a um lugar.
 - Correto: I’m going to the store. (Indo para a loja.)
 - Errado: I’m gonna the store.

Exemplos adicionais:

- I’m gonna call you later. (Vou te ligar mais tarde.)
- Are you gonna finish your homework? (Você vai terminar sua lição de casa?)
- He’s not gonna like this. (Ele não vai gostar disso.)

Get - can I get...?

Can I get a burger?

A diferença entre “some” e “a little” está no contexto e no uso específico:

1. “Some”

- É usado de forma mais geral e pode se referir a uma quantidade não específica de algo, tanto contável quanto incontável.
- Pode ser usado para fazer pedidos, oferecer algo ou indicar uma quantidade indefinida.

Exemplos com incontáveis:

- Can I have some water? (Posso pegar um pouco de água?)
- I need some sugar for the cake. (Preciso de um pouco de açúcar para o bolo.)

Exemplos com contáveis:

- I have some apples in my bag. (Tenho algumas maçãs na minha bolsa.)
- Do you want some books to read? (Você quer alguns livros para ler?)

2. “A little”

- É usado apenas com substantivos incontáveis (aqueles que não têm plural e não podem ser contados individualmente, como água, leite, açúcar).
- Indica uma pequena quantidade, geralmente menor que “some”.

Exemplos:

- Can I have a little milk in my coffee? (Posso colocar um pouco de leite no meu café?)
- She has a little time to help you. (Ela tem um pouco de tempo para te ajudar.)
- Add a little salt to the soup. (Adicione um pouco de sal na sopa.)

Resumo:

- Some: Quantidade indefinida; usado com substantivos contáveis e incontáveis.
Ex.: I have some apples. (Tenho “algumas” maçãs.)

- A little: Pequena quantidade; usado apenas com substantivos incontáveis.
Ex.: I need a little water. (Preciso de um pouco de água.)

Diferença principal:

- Some pode ser usado para ambos (contáveis e incontáveis).
- A little é apenas para incontáveis e indica uma quantidade menor.

Coffee time:

1. Espresso (êsprêsô) – café moído + água quente.
2. Latte (látê) – espresso + leite fervido.
3. Cappuccino (caputchino) – 2 doses de espresso + leite fervido + espuma de leite.
4. Mocha (mó cá) – espresso + chocolate + leite fervido.
5. Macchiato (máquiato) – espresso + espuma de leite.

A escolha entre "-er" e "more" para formar o comparativo de superioridade em inglês depende do tipo de adjetivo. Aqui estão as regras principais:

1 Usamos "-er" para adjetivos curtos (geralmente com uma sílaba e alguns de duas sílabas terminados em -y, -le, -ow, -er):

✓ Adjetivos curtos:

- tall → taller (alto → mais alto)
- fast → faster (rápido → mais rápido)
- small → smaller (pequeno → menor)

✓ Adjetivos de duas sílabas terminados em -y, -le, -ow, -er:

- happy → happier (feliz → mais feliz)
- narrow → narrower (estreito → mais estreito)
- simple → simpler (simples → mais simples)

Se o adjetivo curto terminar em consoante-vogal-consoante, dobramos a última consoante:

- big → bigger
- hot → hotter

2 Usamos "more" para adjetivos longos (com duas sílabas ou mais, exceto os que seguem a regra acima):

✓ Adjetivos longos:

- expensive → more expensive (caro → mais caro)
- interesting → more interesting (interessante → mais interessante)

3 Exceções (Adjetivos Irregulares)

Alguns adjetivos têm formas irregulares:

- good → better (bom → melhor)
- bad → worse (ruim → pior)
- far → farther/further (longe → mais longe)

Resumo:

- ✓ Adjetivo curto → "-er"
- ✓ Adjetivo longo → "more"
- ✓ Algumas exceções têm formas próprias
